“ I had this friend and he had a piano that he just wanted to get rid of and I asked my mom if she knew anyone that might like to have it she said Dianne would love it .it wasn't in the greatest of conditions but it still played. we loaded it up and took it to Dianne, moved it in to her house and the minute it was in place she began playing. she played so beautifully that it brought tears to my eyes and to be able to give her some resemblance of the joy she showed just made the moment sweeter.
